An Aspiring Journalist Comes Of Age Midst A Struggle Between Apathy And Idealism In Today's Youth Culture

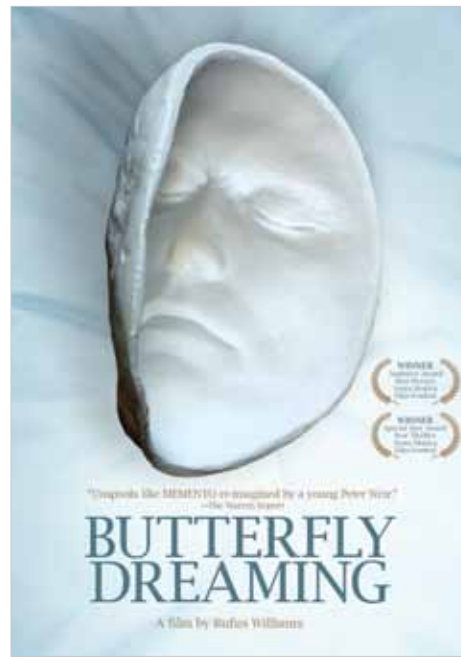

Estlin, a young idealist, is thrust into the real world without the protective bubble of college he's grown accustomed to. His job at a local newspaper doesn't promote social change and Brooke, his political partner in crime, is leaving Brooklyn for Ohio. Frustrated and lost, he falls for Sophie, a whimsical artist with an optimistic view of life. As their relationship grows, Estlin discovers a dark, secretive undertone to Sophie's simplistic take on the world. But when he pursues the truth, their relationship crumbles, plunging him further into confusion and isolation. With seemingly nowhere else to go, he heads to a protest in Washington, DC. But as he searches for the remains of 1960s idealism, he must come to terms with what has been lost, what still remains and where he must go from here.

Butterfly Dreaming

A film by Rufus Williams

Andrew Bowen (Pit & The Pendulum, Conjurer, CSI, MADtv)
Missy Crider (90210, Without a Trace, 24, Mulholland Drive)
& Emmy Award™ Winner
James McDaniel (NYPD Blue, Numb3rs)

"Unspools like MEMENTO re-imagined by a young Peter Weir." —The Warren Report

"Butterfly Dreaming has all of the intrigue and mystery of a classic episode of Twin Peaks" —cinebanter.com

In 300 B.C. the Chinese philosopher Chuang Tzu awoke from dreaming himself as a butterfly, only to wonder if he was not in fact a butterfly now dreaming himself as a man...

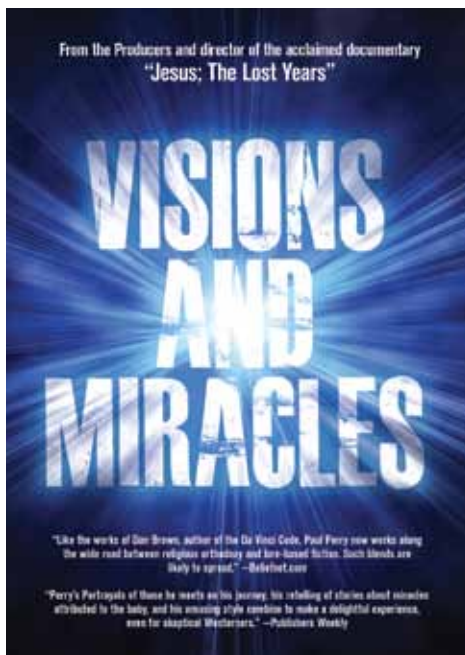

Robert Pollack's life is a tranquil dream; a career, a home and a wife. A dream that is shattered by the accident, by the tragic loss of his wife. Now his life is unravelling. As he desperately grapples to piece together the moments before her death, the distinction between his vivid dreams and his slippery reality blurs. Facts melt into fiction as his emotionally charged memories play tricks on him, forcing him to question everything about his past. Can he even be sure he himself is not his own dream? Butterfly Dreaming takes us on Rob's tortured ride down the road of uncertainty, in the tradition of mystery & suspense thrillers like Memento, Premonition and Mulholland Drive.

Visions and Miracles

A film by Paul Perry

From the Producers and director of the acclaimed documentary "Jesus; The Lost Years"

"Like the works of Dan Brown, author of the Da Vinci Code, Paul Perry now works along the wide road between religious orthodoxy and lore-based fiction. Such blends are likely to spread." —Beliefnet.com

"Perry's Portrayals of those he meets on his journey, his retelling of stories about miracles attributed to the baby, and his amusing style combine to make a delightful experience, even for skeptical Westerners." —Publishers Weekly

From the Author of several New York Times Best Seller list books; Closer to the Light, Saved By The Light and Transformed by the Light.

Inspired by the miracles that began at the Church of Zeitoun in Egypt in the 1960's, where a visage of Mary holding baby Jesus persisted on a ceiling despite cleaning, painting and construction, as well as other persistent events of visions, including church rooftop illumination outlining the mother Mary; a statue of Mary crying an oily substance that seems to have healing powers... Visions of Miracles examines how unexplained events in the most unlikely places prompt revitalization of faith, for the faithful and skeptics alike, demonstrating the presence of unexplained mysteries we call miracles in ways that defy both reason and explanation. Best selling author and filmmaker Paul Perry takes us on a journey of discovery deep inside the mystery and wonder of faith, providing visual and material examination of visions that cannot be denied.

"The Most Talked About Indie Film of the Year!"
—Taipei Times

This critically acclaimed, modern story portrays three broken hearts that converge by destiny; A heartbroken sound technician can't get over the girl who leaves him without a word. He collects sounds on tape and sends them to her. A girl name Ryo receives the tapes by accident. She is involved with a married man, but temptation leads her to track down the tapes sender because the sounds continue to echo in her head. Meanwhile, a recently divorced psychiatrist embarks on a soul searching journey and meets the sound technician. Will these three lonely souls eventually find the place that is closest to their hearts? Winner of the Special Jury Award at Tokyo IFF and winner of the Venice IFF renowned Critis Week Award, this hip youthful love story if both timeless as its emotions are universal. Its about the search for love, and belonging.

Adapted from Taiwan's most beloved poet Tagore: "It takes the most distant course to come nearest to yourself. It takes the greatest climb to bring us to nature's finest beauty. We must knock on every other door to reach our own. To reach the innermost self in the end..."
